‘Remembrance: the Impact of War’: another creative writing workshop for children...

Saturday, November 17 from 1 – 2pm

November sees the centenary of the Armistice - using the current exhibition ‘Terrain and conflict: Repercussions’ as inspiration, consider how major international events could help inform and inspire your writing, be it poetry, short stories or song lyrics. Come along to the exhibition and use your creativity to voice your thoughts on the impact of war, whether it concerns the events of the Great War or more recent events involving refugees in conflict.

One hour workshop, suitable for ages 11 +, costs just £3, (cash on the day), to take place on Saturday, November 17 from 1 – 2pm.

Places are limited so book early! Complete the form below and return to Kim at education@younggallerysalisbury.co.uk – come along with pen and paper and enthusiasm for the writing process!
